Massey University's IESANZ-accredited lighting programme is officially moving online in 2021. Now you can get a university qualification no matter what is happening in the world!

This isn't just another online course. Each paper will be taught through Massey's user-friendly online learning platform. You will be guided through the programme via regular live tutorials, where you can ask questions of lecturers and mix with others in the programme. You will also have access to pre-recorded lectures and lab demonstrations, plus online notes. All coursework will be handed out and returned to you online.

An optional "residency" week will be held in the second paper, where you will be given hands-on opportunities, such as the chance to use photometric equipment in Massey's well-equipped Lighting Lab.

In these uncertain times, the programme aims to give you job security – you will be able to advance your lighting knowledge while still working full time.

If you're a New Zealander, you may qualify for "fees free". International students are also most welcome.
